The love for all living creatures is the most noble attribute of man.

- Charles Darwin

Dear Friend,

As a supporter of Busch Wildlife Sanctuary, I want to tell you how much you mean to the Sanctuary and the wild animals that depend on us.

Every year we receive over 5,000 sick, injured, and orphaned wild animals. Nearly 90% of these animals have suffered from human related injuries such as: collisions with cars, fishing line entanglement, illegal gunshots, electrocutions, poisonings, and more. If it were not for your support, I wouldn't want to think what would happen to them.

I am reaching out to ask for your help in caring for these injured animals. We are proud that over 35% of our patients are successfully returned to wild. Sadly though, some of the animals are too severely injured to survive on their own in the wild... others are given refuge here at the Sanctuary. We provide loving care for each and every one.

You know about the great work we do here at the Sanctuary, and we know you have a love for the animals in our care. Please give the largest gift you can.

On behalf of my team and all the animals in our care - thank you!

Yours truly,

David Hitzig

PS Come check out our new Welcome Center.

In most cases, it costs more than $250 to get each wild animal we receive rehabilitated and ready for release. We, of course, can't forget the daily feeding and care of the animals that reside permanently at the Sanctuary.

Sparky has lived at the Sanctuary since 1994. He had been electrocuted on a power line that caused permanent damage to his wing, preventing him from being able to fly again.
